HERITAGE CHALLENGE OPPORTUNITY

"Let the word go forth from this time and place, to friend and foe alike, that the torch has been passed to a new generation of Americans—born in this century, . . . disciplined by a hard and bitter peace." We, as a part of this new generation, accept the torch that has been passed on to us. "We shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe" in order to forever hold high this torch. We are proud of our heritage and welcome challenges, remembering that life holds vast opportunities for those who work diligently and face life courageously. During eighty-four years of existence, Douglass has been outstanding for high standards of learning and an admirable teaching staff. This can be shown through its alumni who have achieved high goals with courage and dignity. We will continue to contribute to our heritage by holding high the torch of unity and co-operation. Through the 1968 SURVEY, we will share with you examples of Douglass' rich heritage—achieved through a strict adherence to the principle that teamwork is essential and indispensable.

We have accepted the challenge that has been left for us by our predecessors. We are now ready to utilize the opportunities that current national programs have made possible. We truly feel that our Alma Mater has always steered her ship toward excellence and we will strive to uphold her standards. "This much we pledge—and more."

Class of 1968

Justice Thurgood Marshall

Thurgood Marshall, a 1925 graduate of Douglass High School, has contributed much to our rich heritage. Graduating as an honor student with a great love for debating, he has earned the respect of all whose lives he has touched. He finished Lincoln University in 1930 and graduated at the top of his class from the Howard Law School in 1933. Serving as Chief Counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Legal Defense and Educational fund from 1938-1962, he won twenty-nine Supreme Court victories including the 1954 decision banning segregated schools. In 1962, President John F. Kennedy appointed him Judge of the Second Circuit Court of Appeals of New York. Then, in 1965, he became Solicitor General of the United States. His memberships include the American Bar Association, the National Bar Association, the New York City County Lawyers Associations, the Research Institute, The Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, the College of Electors Hall of Fame at New York University, and the Board of Directors of the John F. Kennedy Library. On August 30, 1967, Thurgood Marshall became the first Negro Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. "He is best qualified by training and by very valuable service to the country," said President Johnson after appointing Thurgood Marshall an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court.

We are proud of Justice Marshall and we will forever remember him as a former Douglass student who has helped to cultivate our heritage, accepted challenges in many vital areas of our modern day living and has utilized every opportunity to the greatest advantage.

Retirees

Mrs. Ethel Hucles

West Virginia not only produced John Brown but also John Robinson. He was a "favorite son" who a decade ago became a part of the Douglass faculty after an enviable teaching and administrative career in the schools of Hinton, West Virginia. His reasoned approach in the teaching of history and his calm assurances and wise direction as a counselor endeared him to those under his guidance. He became a part of the society, here at Douglass and Douglass is better for his having been here.

Best wishes for contentment and happiness in your retirement.

The graduating class of 1968 is privileged to acknowledge its appreciation of Mrs. Hucles, a person who returned to her alma mater and added to its distinction. Only for a short time in her career (3 years at Dunbar) was she ever away from the Douglass High School. Her years as a teacher of English opened to thousands the beautiful vistas of literature and the humanities. Her philosophy "college never hurt anyone" dominated her counseling and was a beacon light to many who were virtually in the dark.

Mr. John Robinson

In Memoriam

DR. LAURENCE G. PAQUIN
June 9, 1912—October 12, 1967

The life of a great person, teacher, and leader has ended.

With clear recognition of our profound loss, we mourn the passing of Laurence G. Paquin.

His Superintendency of the Baltimore City Public Schools spanned the brief period from July, 1965 to October, 1967; yet his contributions to the entire city, its schools, and to the profession will stand as beacons of accomplishment and foundations for progress.

He was action-oriented. Ways were found to solve problems, not reasons for evading or delaying. He wanted to be "where the action is" and to be a vital part in that most magnificent of human quests — the striving for excellence in each person. Education was his vocation. His spirit, energy, and dedication were his driving forces applied tirelessly and skillfully to the tasks he shouldered.

He liked people and respected each individual for his unique abilities and capacities. His faith that the involvement of people would bring about desirable changes was unwavering. His abiding concern was for each and for all.

He possessed a rare balance of imagination and common sense. Ideas were tested against practical considerations and objective data. Courageous in his convictions, he invited, and indeed welcomed, rational and reasonable opposition to his proposals.

Undergirding the leadership qualities that inspired our confidence was his understanding of the necessity and rightness of teamwork. In his thinking, every individual carried leadership responsibilities. He had an uncommon mastery in the skill of delegating responsibilities so that the leadership qualities of every team member were utilized.

He was a friend and a friendly man. Burdens of awesome size and complexity did not affect his thoughtfulness and kindness. His keen sense of humor enabled him to keep his perspective despite the frustrations of his office.

We dare not count his time with us in years, for they were few. We shall remember him for his personal qualities and for the mark he made — these are timeless.

For the person he was, for what he represented, and for all that he gave, we express our deep gratefulness and thankfulness.

We extend to his wife and family our heartfelt sympathy.

Commissioners on October 12, 1967*

Administration

Many of us read the new novel, Five Smooth Stones, by Ann Fairbairn during the past year. The author describes the main character of the story as being "one of remarkable proportions; strong but gentle; stern but loving . . . courageous, and above all irresistibly human." We feel that this description also applies to our Principal, Mrs. Edna O. Campbell. These qualities have enabled her to successfully lead the Douglass Family.

Mrs. Georgia Brown, our Special Assistant has just completed her first year here at Douglass High School. She was formerly a teacher and the Head of the Foreign Language Department at Forest Park High School. A great deal of her time is spent with attendance and pupil accounting.

Mr. Davis, our Vice Principal, knows and is well known by all of the students here at Douglass. We shall remember him particularly for his work in the preparation of schedules, his encouragement to our athletic teams, and his supervision of detention room.

Operation Douglass

Douglass is always on the move. The physical plant houses more than 2,300 students and an educational and service staff of more than 140 persons. Caring for the needs and problems of such a group is a major undertaking to say the least. In this area we have problems of health and well-being, nutrition, comfort, cleanliness and communication. Douglassites enjoy the best of care in these areas.

The health suite is always available to us for our emergency problems and routine health checks. Our halls and rooms are always neat and clean. Winter's blustery weather is forgotten in the warmth of the building. The mad dash for the cafeteria at lunchtime is a testimonial for the tasty food we enjoy there. Our efficient secretaries keep the lines of communication open between the administration, faculty, student body and the community. These are the services that form the quiet and unobtrusive background for the smooth operation of our school and the ones for which we are so grateful.

Some members of our office staff perform duties associated with a busy day at Douglass.

They include: (standing) Mrs. G. Redd, and Miss M. Moore. (seated) Mrs. M. Brewer, and Mrs. G. Davis.

CUSTODIAL STAFF

Challenges in Scholastic Achievement

In the academic program there has been continuous challenge in order to prepare us to use the tools of education effectively and intelligently. This section of our book gives a resume' of that program. We are now prepared to deal with the practical and theoretical problems of today's challenging world.

A recent graduate of our school, Keith Walker, met the challenges presented to him here and went further to make outstanding accomplishments.

Keith was graduated from Douglass in 1963, receiving such honors as the Deiches Award, the Secondary Schoolmen's Club Award, The Tete a Tete Social Club Award, and a four year scholarship to Morgan State College. Keith's distinguished accomplishments as an undergraduate can be found in the 1966-67 edition of Who's Who Among Students At American Universities and Colleges.

He is now enrolled at the University of Grenoble, in Grenoble, France having received a Fulbright Scholarship.

It is hoped that the achievements of this former Douglassite will inspire us to set higher goals and to accept the challenges which accompany these goals.

Challenges in Language Arts

In order for Douglass High School students to become effective contributing citizens in our democratic life, they must be taught in the English language arts program to think clearly and accurately, to reason intelligently, to speak extemporaneously, and to write clearly and forcefully. Those who can proceed beyond these fundamental goals are encouraged to pursue enrichment or honors programs.

Experienced persons in the community, librarians, and repertory theater players are brought into the school to enlighten the pupils and to widen their horizons. Teachers who have traveled or have had other worthwhile experiences are encouraged to share their knowledge with the students. Successful graduates who have recently left the school are invited to talk about their job experiences with the pupils and to stress the rich Douglass heritage. In addition to these in-building services, the pupils are taken on trips to the theater, to the libraries, and to other educational and cultural centers.

The opportunities for learning, for improvement, and for enjoyment are manifold. Those who need special educational assistance are given remedial work in speech and/or reading. These pupils have the services of a speech therapist three times a week and of a reading teacher daily. Developmental reading is offered to those who can profit from this advanced type of instruction. By using the classroom facilities and those of the library, not only is reading stressed for completion of assigned work but also for recreational purposes. In addition to studying the written word, opportunities are given for viewing filmstrips, films, and television programs. Seniors who can carry an extra major assignment may elect journalism or dramatics. An excerpt from Our Town was presented by the dramatics class at "Curriculum Expo" in November. A major dramatic production, Purlie Victorious, was presented to the public in April. In these and in other courses in English, students are encouraged to do creative work of a high caliber.

Training in the English language arts is given so that each pupil may become a thoughtful, articulate individual. The challenge is offered; motivation is frequent, varied, and interesting. How each pupil accepts the challenge is his own privilege and his own responsibility. Whether he takes full advantage of the many opportunities is his decision. The graduates of the class of '68 have met the challenge successfully. It is up to the others currently enrolled at Douglass, the members of the Classes of '69 and '70 to "carpe diem" (seize the opportunity offered).

The reading laboratory activities are listening and reading. The students, using the equipment, are: Walter Barnes, Emily Jones, Peggy Hasty, and Linda Ballard. The instructors, looking on, are Mrs. Peck, head of the English department, Mr. Cornick and Mrs. Scott, reading instructors.

Challenges In Mathematics

Angela Moore of 11-1 explains a problem in Linear Programming. First Row: Eric Taylor, Adrian Armstead, and Florestine Bourne. Second Row: Andrew Coplin, Linda Wharton, Carlton Walker, and Patricia Harris.

Mathematics is living, growing, and changing. The department accepts the challenge to change, to implement new techniques, and to prepare students for higher education and job opportunities. The department also aims to provide students with the skills and concepts that will enable them to use mathematics effectively in satisfying consumer and personal needs.

Courses are offered in elementary algebra, general-academic mathematics, geometry, applied mathematics, intermediate mathematics, and advanced mathematics, and Honors Mathematics at the eleventh grade level. Interested students may enroll in computer mathematics and other enrichment courses that are available at city-wide centers.

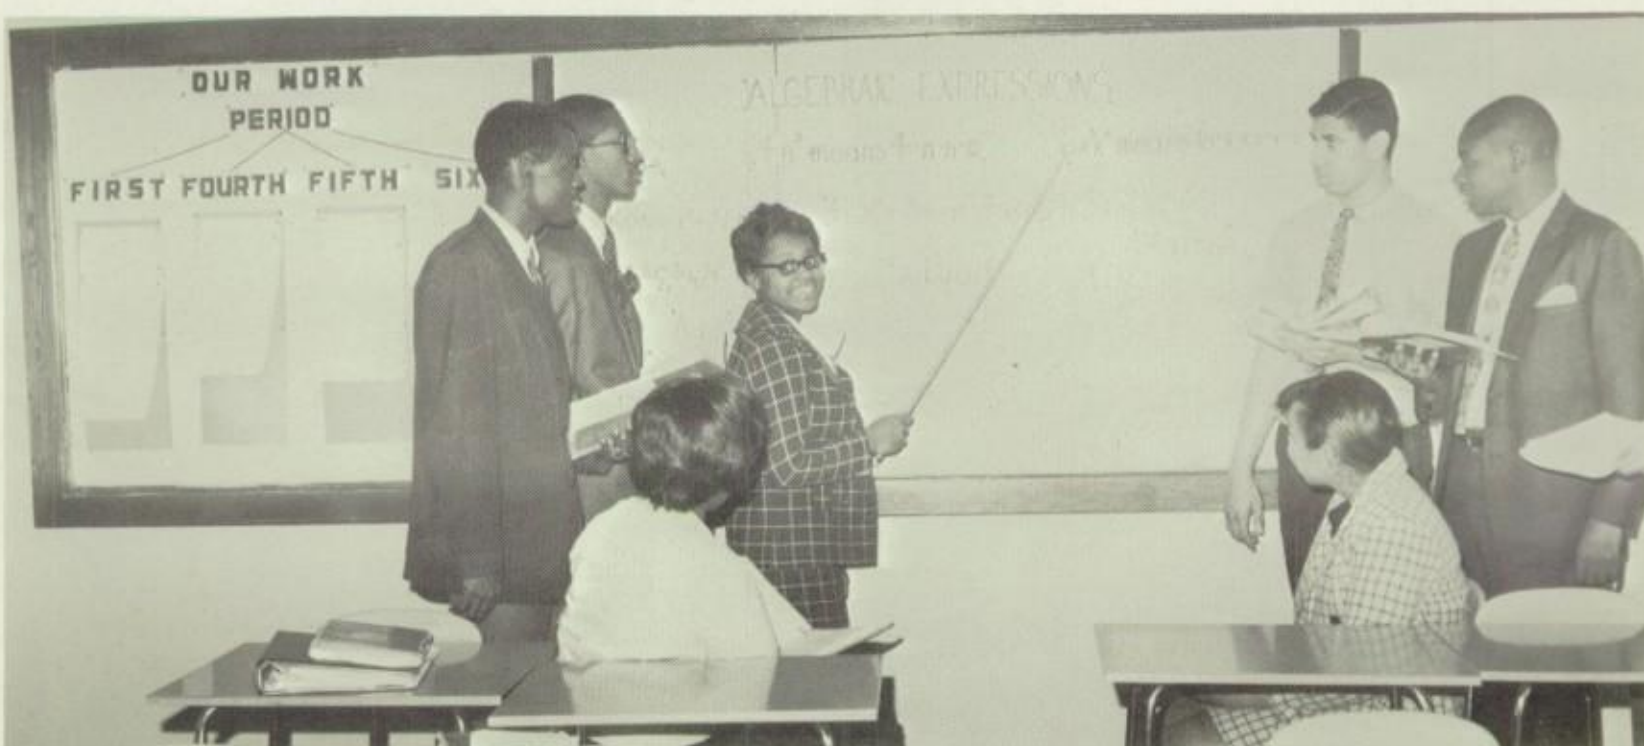

The mathematics laboratory is being equipped with modern furniture, listening posts, calculating machines, and other mathematical laboratory materials that are in current use throughout the country. The calculators will be used to develop skills and concepts necessary to meet the ever growing demands for accuracy in all mathematical processes.

The department is continually seeking ways to motivate, encourage, and prepare students to compete with other youth in the areas of business and industry, post high school training, and social involvement.

Challenge in Science

These are times of unprecedented change. Science has demonstrated the ability of man to change the earth and the course of human life through technology. Much has been gained, yet many of these alterations have outpaced our wisdom by bringing about destruction and irreversible changes instead of serving human needs. In so many cases our ingenuity has outpaced our wisdom and we have not conserved the quality of the environment as a productive realm for man's activities.

Our students must become aware of the pressing responsibilities of our present generation: not so much as to conquer the natural world as to live in harmony with it. Our science program, therefore, provides opportunities for students to pursue various scientific disciplines to not only gain concepts of science but also to develop reasonable behavior and actions that are so necessary for the expansion and conservation of the world's resources.

Our curriculum is learner-oriented: designed so that each student may participate in science activities to meet his common needs and develop him to his fullest capacity and potential.

Regular courses are offered in biology, chemistry, physics and physical science. In addition, there are classes in BSCS biology and CHEM Study that offer more investigatory experiences in the laboratory. Major emphasis in all the areas of science are:

1. Developing basic interests in the development of scientific ecology with special emphasis on the ways plants and animals and especially man adapt to a changing environment.

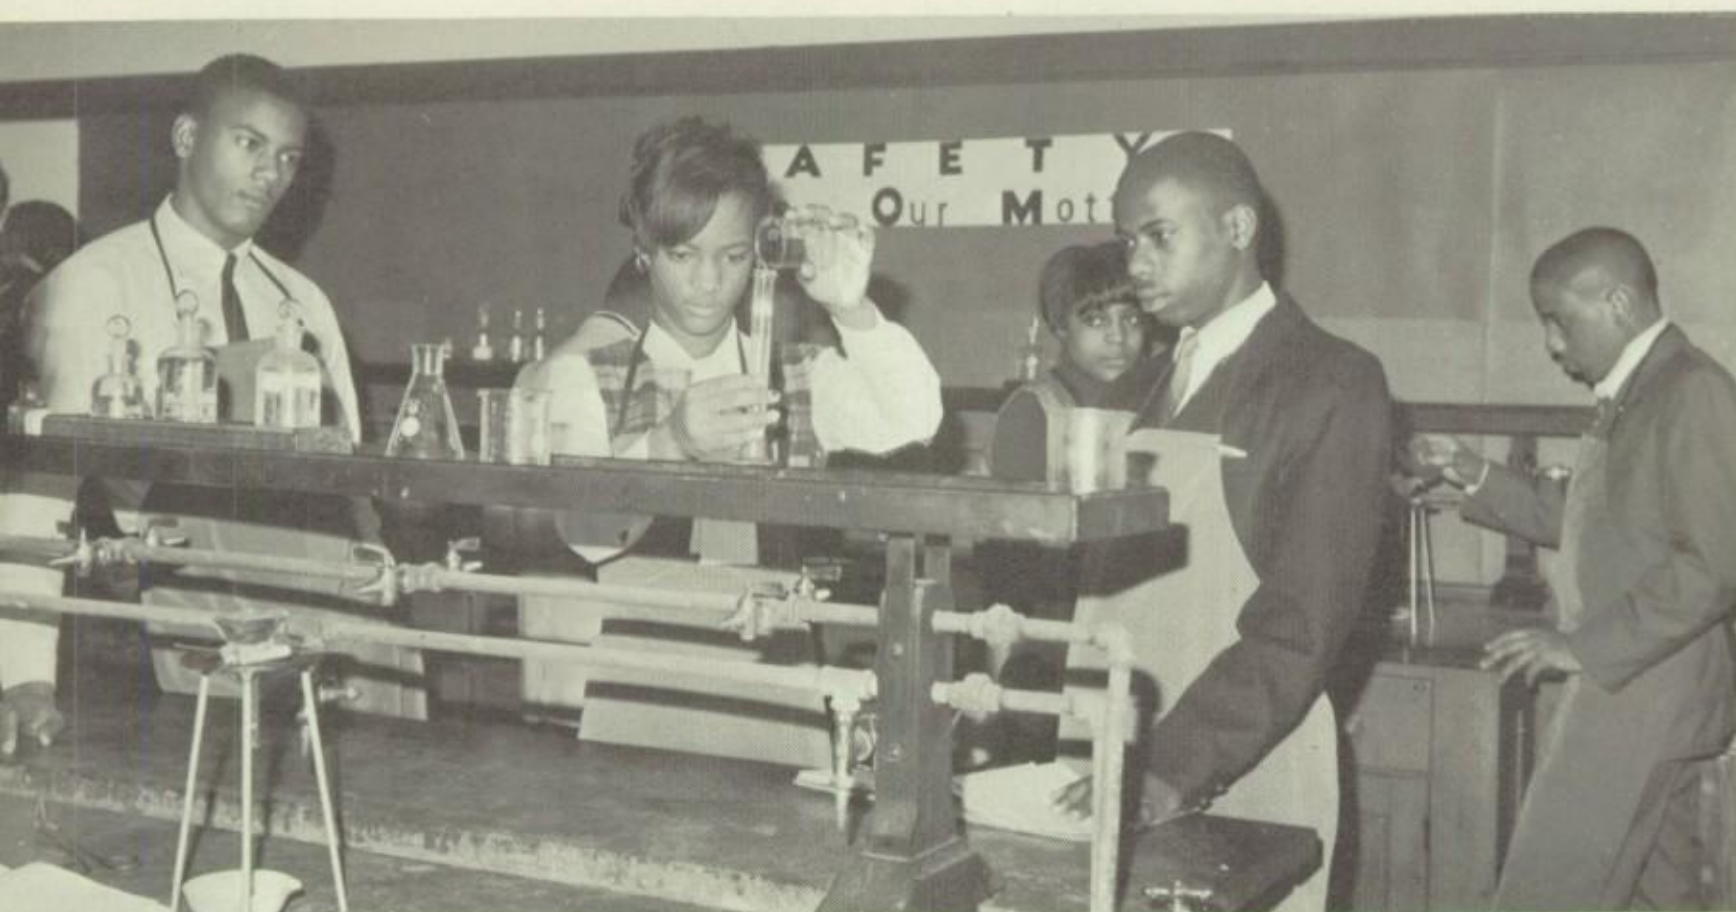

2. Understanding important scientific relationships and concepts through scientific inquiry.

3. Understanding the relationship of all of the sciences, as well as that of mathematics to science.

Challenges in Industrial Arts

Industrial arts makes an important contribution to the school's aim to develop well-rounded citizens. The subject offerings are: general crafts, electricity, general metal, mechanical drawing, printing and woodwork.

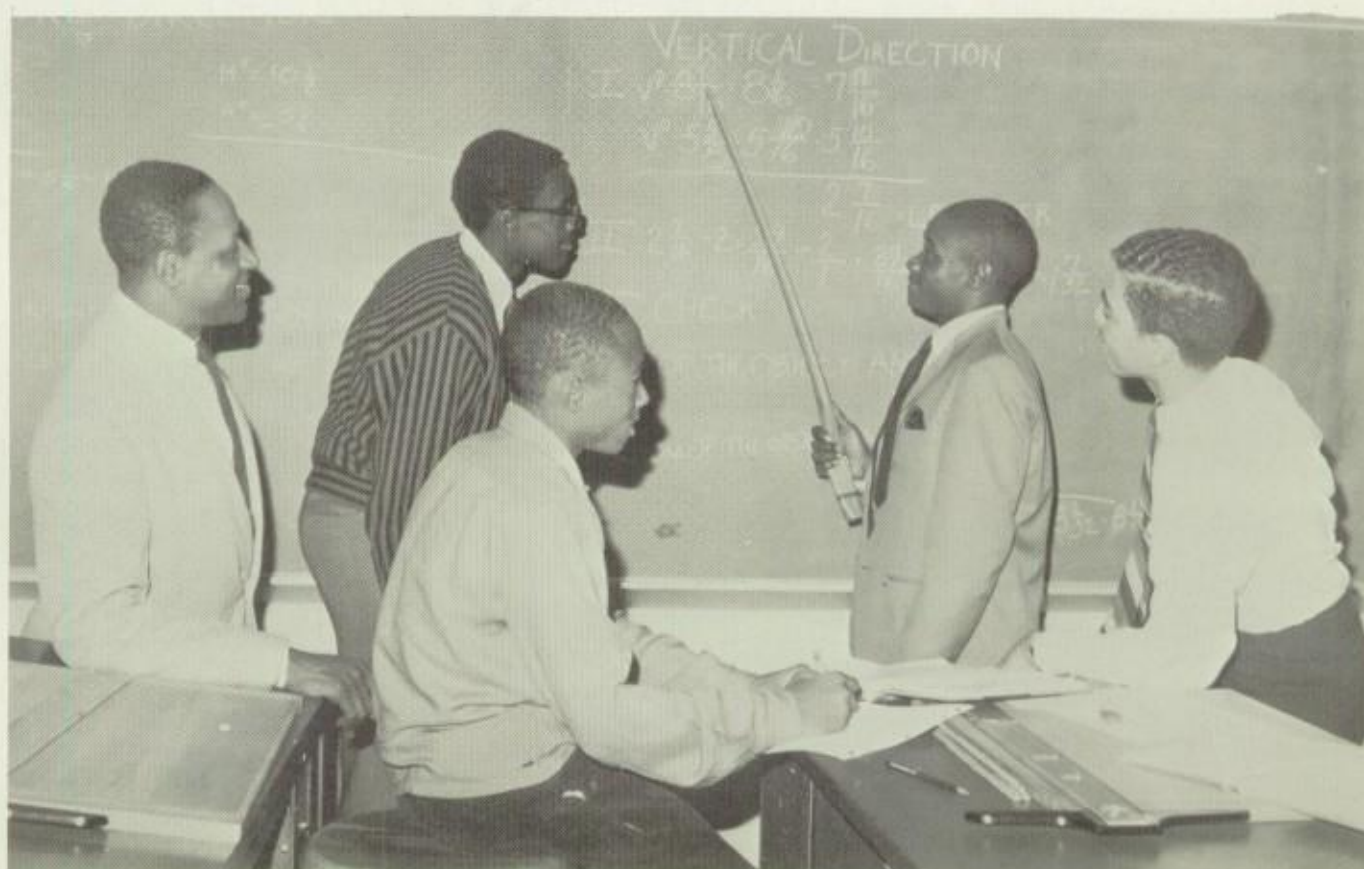

In recognition of the many opportunities available to young people during this exciting era, the teachers of industrial arts seek to prepare students to meet the challenge which awaits them in the employment world. In recognition of their inevitable confrontation with competitiveness, a major aim in industrial arts is to interest students in the skilled trades and to encourage them to seek training in the crafts beyond high school.

In addition, the utilitarian, the creative and aesthetic aspects of industrial arts receive continuing emphasis in order that the students might be prepared for practical, as well as leisure time use of what they learn. Industrial arts subjects are designed to prepare students to meet the challenge of both their vocational and avocational needs as effectively as possible.

Challenges in Family Living

Diana Everett, Deborah Fortson, Daniel Fussell, and John Simms discuss furniture selection in a family living class. Mrs. Anne Wilson is the instructor.

PREPARING FOR FUTURE FAMILY LIVING

Home Economics in the secondary schools is designed to meet the needs of pupils for future family living. The Department of Home Economics aims to provide equal opportunity for the greatest development of every student.

The members of the department are dedicated to giving attention to all aspects of Home Economics Education; Foods and Nutrition, Textiles and Clothing, Home Management, Family Living, Sex Education and the Related Arts.

To meet these requirements, this department realizes that home and family living pass on the greatest responsibilities of modern education. The goal of this department, therefore, is to teach students the importance of good family relationships citizenship, and the understanding of the better things in life.

A study in the use and care of equipment. Janie Herring and Joann Latimer are working. Mozella Kennedy and Elicia Word are at the dishwasher.

A foods class works as a group in preparing a luncheon. Students included are: Mary Holden, Estelle Grainger, Cheryl Lawson, Janice Wynn, Catherine Washington, Myrtle Goode, Verneither Manning, Joyce Carpenter, and Patricia Grant.

Challenges in Business Education

THE CHALLENGE OF THE BUSINESS WORLD

The business department strives to equip its students with adequate skills and competencies to enable each to take his place in the competitive business world. This goal is approached through both college-preparatory and job-preparatory curricula, providing vocational preparation for those students planning immediate employment in business while providing the necessary background for those who plan to engage in higher education.

Each student is given a thorough grounding in the functions and practices of American business as well as in its operational skill. Through the cooperative work-study program, qualified job-preparatory students engage in actual situations as part-time, closely supervised employees. The experience thus gained often leads to full-time employment following graduation.

Students may choose to major in business procedures, office and clerical practice, or stenography and secretarial practice. All business students, of course, learn to become proficient typists. Each may elect, also, to pursue such courses as bookkeeping, business arithmetic, business law, business organization, consumer education, economics, and general business. Each student's program is tailor-made for him according to his interests, aptitudes, abilities, and needs.

The ultimate goal of the business department is to help each student attain the employable skills, knowledge, and attitudes which will enable him to become a self-supporting, self-confident, self-respecting citizen of his community, state, and nation.

Preparing for the business world through the use of business machines: (standing) Mrs. B. Johnson, Beatrice Gallop, Cynthia Johnson, (sitting) Leroy James, Stella Brown, and Marvin Dorsey

Challenges in Art

Art, in spite of the haze which often obscures its nature, is no mysterious activity to be understood only by a few. It is one of the fields of human activity in which all students use their powers and abilities to communicate their experiences to fellow men and to transform the materials of the natural world for human use.

Art Education at the Senior High School level is designed to instill in all students and understanding of and an appreciation for well designed objects. It attempts to foster, develop, and nurture in each student the attitude of critical evaluation, the ability to make informed intelligent and aesthetic judgement throughout his life. Through the students, we try to inform the public that aesthetics and creativity are important contributions to improvement of our society.

Art education further tries to meet both the vocational and avocational needs of both the terminal and the collegebound students.

Students are designing posters: David Miller, Michael DeShields, Larry Rosenberg, Brenda Coates. Mrs. Berniece Brown is the teacher.

Activity: Paper Mache—Wood Sculpture. This is Mr. Addison's class: Franklin Brown, Jacqueline Vines, James Simmons.

Challenges in Foreign Languages

The Foreign Language Department is cognizant of the opportunities to travel, study and work in varied fields and in other countries. Therefore, its program is being constantly studied, revised, and adapted to meet these challenges.

All interested students are offered a choice of four languages: French, Spanish, German, and Latin. These languages may be terminated at level II or continued through level IV. The department recommends the study of one foreign language through level IV. Students who prove their ability and interest are encouraged to study an additional language through level II or level III.

Techniques used in the Foreign Language

Department are adapted to provide for individual abilities and differences. The language program is geared to interest, to appeal to, and to challenge students of varied abilities. Modern materials such as audio-lingual textbooks, current periodicals, tapes, records, films, filmstrips, and other teaching aids are used to provide their learning experience.

Emphasis on comprehension, speaking, reading, and writing provides for the total development of students pursuing these foreign language choices. Then, when a student learns a foreign language, he is introduced not only to another language but also to another culture which he is given the opportunity to understand, to appreciate, and to respect.

French level III— Professeur A. Meyers, Lesson: An intensive writing comprehensive exercise. Row 1 — Mona Addison, Michael Crowder, Anna Hinds. Row 2: — Linda Wharton, Vivian Graham, Jacqueline Persons, Mercedes Chaplin. Row 3—Phyllis Lagree, Minerva Eaton, June Wood, Marietta Ramsey, Rosalind Carroll, Robert Noakes. # Challenges in Music

Our music department is concerned with all phases of school life and participates actively in graduation exercises, assemblies, athletic contests, civic affairs, and community projects.

Courses in general music provide varied musical experiences for all students in the school so that there will be appreciation for many types of music. Those students who have special interests and talents for music become music majors and receive concentrated training in vocal and instrumental music. The music curriculum is for talented and interested students who wish to pursue careers in music. Training here is more extensive in that these students receive a training program in theory, keyboard, sight-singing, dictation, as well as choral and or instrumental experiences.

Extra-curricula musical offerings include the Girls Glee Club, the Mixed Choir, Instrumental Ensembles, and the Stage Band and Marching Band.

General Music

Music Theory Class

Challenges in Social Studies

The Social Studies curriculum reflects several concerns for the youth of today—a healthy and intensive exploration of our heritage, a challenge to seek effective solutions to the problematic aspects of our contemporary society, and intensive preparation for the new opportunities of an atomic age.

One major responsibility of social education is its commitment to citizenship education. The high concern with inquiry and problem-solving serves not only for effective thinking for our present society, but also as action-commitment, preparation for being a participant in the decision-making process of citizenship.

GIRLS' PHYSICAL EDUCATION

The program of co-curricular activities for girls includes intramural competition and other interschool activities and interscholastic competition. This program offers all students regardless of ability, opportunities to participate in activities which are useful now and which will be useful in later life.

In the fall, students participate in badminton, speedball, dance, and the officials club. In the winter, students participate in basketball, dance, apparatus and tumbling, and the officials club. In the spring, students participate in volleyball, synchronized swimming, softball, and dance, also the officials club.

These activities provide experiences which will aid students in the development of physical well-being and emotional maturity.

The primary aim of the physical education program for boys is to promote the optimum physical, mental, ethical and social development of our students to meet the challenge and demands of today's democratic society.

Its primary objectives are: to develop organic vigor, strength, and endurance; to develop neuro-muscular coordination, agility, balance, and flexibility of body movement; to learn skills for effective participation in the American sports culture; to develop such attributes as courage, loyalty, determination, perseverance, and sportsmanship; to develop personal characteristics of self-control, self-reliance, and initiative; to develop personal qualities enabling the individual to work and play with others for common goals; to create opportunities for developing fellowship and leadership attributes; to acquire information and develop skills and abilities leading to career opportunities in physical education, recreation, and related fields; to develop enduring physical fitness for effective living in a democratic society; to provide opportunities to use the tools of communication through an interest and participation in the sports program; to develop an appreciation of skilled performance for effective spectatorship; and to develop an appreciation of beauty of form and movement.

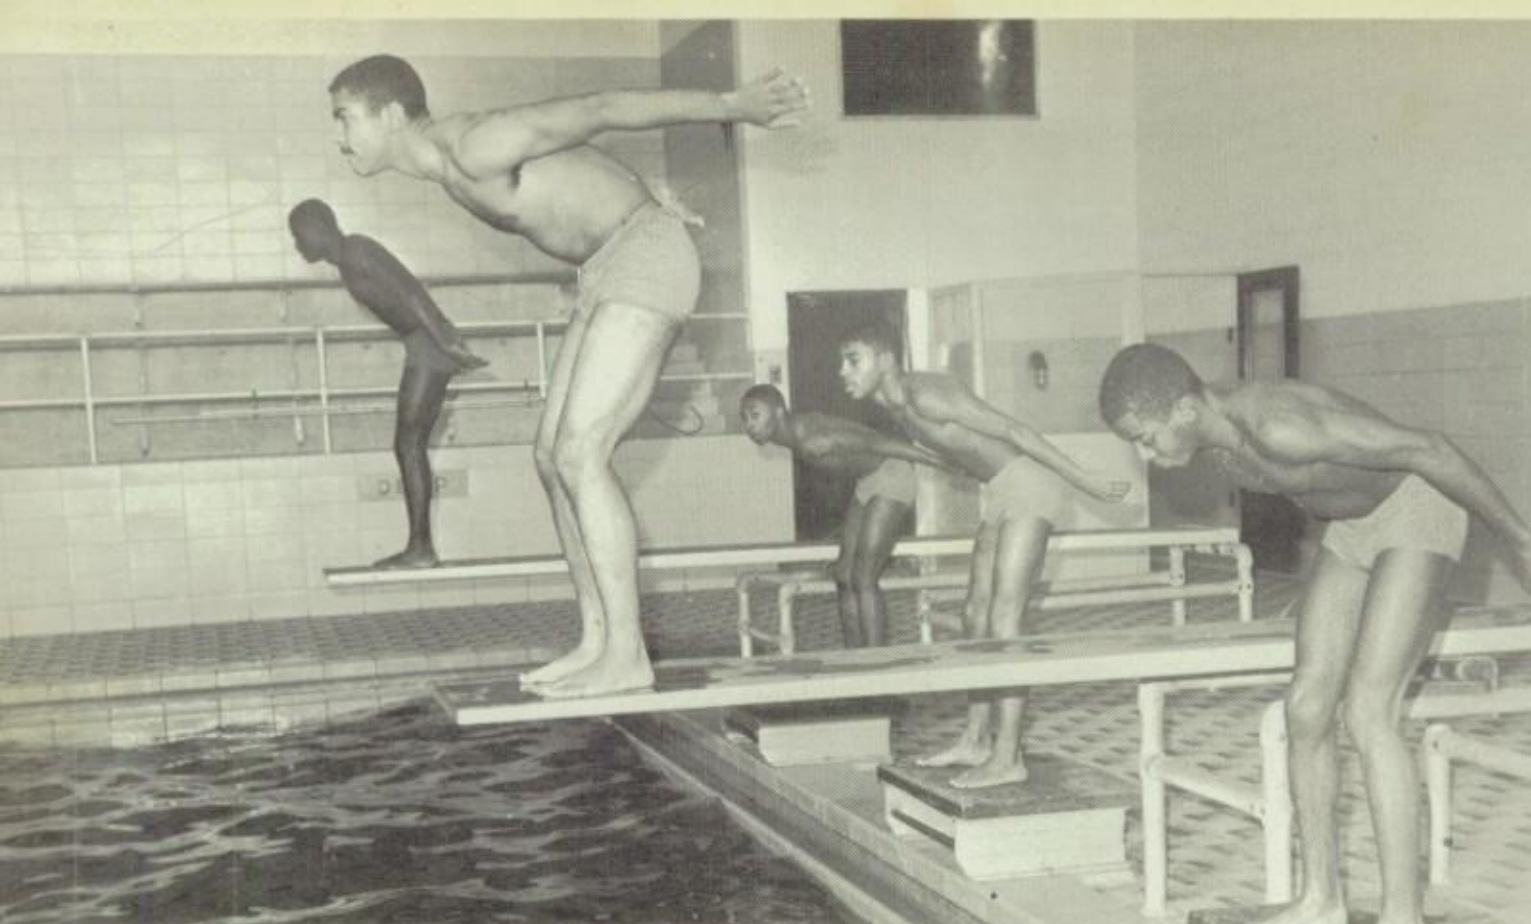

The instructional, intramural and interscholastic program is conducted on a seasonal basis. Activities include football, soccer and cross country in the fall; basketball, swimming, wrestling, gymnastics, stunts and tumbling and riflery in the winter; and track, baseball, tennis, volley ball and golf in the spring.

Provision for instruction in recreational activities such as table tennis, badminton, horseshoe pitching, shuffleboard and officiating is also provided throughout the year.

THE LIBRARY

Books have long been considered the primary means whereby ideas of enduring importance are recorded and communicated. This year the library has begun to add many new and wonderful services through audio-visual materials and resources.

The growth of the library has regularly reflected the spirit of innovation—not for the sake of innovation itself, but in response to authentic needs and problems.

The student who comes into the library enters a world in which the dominant desire is to learn independence of thinking and the most characteristic activity is to seek answers through the use of books and other media which the library affords.

GUIDANCE

Counselors work with each student so that he may realize his maximum capacity in academic achievement, in personal and social adjustment, in the selection of a vocation, in wise planning for further education, and in the profitable and cultural use of leisure time.

In tenth grade guidance, counselors aim to: stimulate and guide students in developing proper attitudes for successful transition from junior to senior high school; emphasize the value of effective study habits; inform students about curricula offerings in grades eleven and twelve; and help them to establish a program of study to suit their special aptitudes.

The eleventh grade guidance program is concerned mainly with college and occupational exploration; pre-testing for college entrance; interpretation of various test results; and subject selections for the twelfth grade.

In the senior program, the college bound select their college prior to completing the proper applications and taking the required college entrance tests. Many meet with college representatives in scheduled interviews. Many seek financial aid from various funds and scholarship programs which require additional applications and tests.

Those seeking employment take civil service examinations, follow up referrals to jobs in industry and business, and participate in work-study programs throughout the year. Those in need of part-time jobs work under the supervision of the Neighborhood Youth Center. Likewise, those who plan to enter the armed forces meet representatives from all branches of the services before graduation.

Dorne Bailey, Bobby Harris, Deborah McCrea, and Charles Bellamy examine college bulletins under the guidance of their counselors, Mr. Griner and Mr. White.

Brenda Haynie, Jocelyn Blackwell, and Zelda Nicholson discuss schedule changes with their counselor, Mr. Griner.

Opportunities in Enriching Activities

At Douglass there are many extra-curricular activities in which students may participate. Through these activities opportunities are provided to stimulate our creativity, broaden our interests, challenge our abilities and talents, enrich our lives, and to mold us into varied and interesting individuals.

Many of these clubs are apprenticeships to future vocations in which students have interest; they give an insight into a profession or vocation. Other clubs give students a chance to do some practical work within a field of endeavor. Still other clubs give students opportunities for further development in the subject areas of their interests and talents. All such activities give the students a chance to meet others with similar interests and to experience profitable and pleasant fellowship.

Many opportunities are offered to the Douglassites by the Physical Education Department in a program designed to build strong bodies and firm characters. In addition to the enjoyment received from developing skills, the Douglassite learns to appreciate the value of a well played game, as well as the worthwhile rewards of sincere sportsmanship.

We are extending to you, the seniors, our greatest appreciation for paving the way for us in senior high school. The contribution that you have made will enable us to grasp our responsibilities in a firmer and more steadfast manner.

This was the year of our introduction and adjustment to senior high school life. We have learned the meaning of the Douglass Spirit and look forward to continuing our growth and development as part of the Douglass Family.

The standards that you have set and maintained are of the highest quality. We will strive to achieve and maintain similar goals which will make us dignified products of the Douglass High School.

Juniors

As this year progressed we moved closer to our goal — to become Douglass seniors. Our predecessors have brought dignity and honor to our school and our goals are to accept this heritage and to make contributions that will enable the school to reach even nobler heights.

We realize that these objectives will not be accomplished without continuous and persistent effort on our part. During our junior year we found the demands of study and performance to be more exacting; we found ourselves more active in clubs, athletics, and in school and community projects. These experiences have prepared us for the leadership roles of our senior year.

Seniors

We, the seniors of Frederick Douglass Senior High School have recognized the challenges put before us. It has been ours to seek and to strive for the cultural, intellectual, and moral development which characterize truly educated men. We have accepted these responsibilities, therefore we are now prepared to take advantage of the opportunities that our American society provides.

In so doing each of us will endeavor to maintain the school's ideals of pride, dignity and excellence. Our constant study and performance, although challenging, played an important role in our stay at Douglass. As we look back on these years we will remember and appreciate the fact that these years were well worthwhile.

Now that we have completed our stay in high school we are prepared to meet many of the challenges and demands of the world community. We are appreciative for the training and preparation provided by this sacred institution.

Williams, B.

BARTON E. WILLIAMS — To enter the U.S. Marines.

Farewell to thee, dear Douglass High,
The time for parting is nigh.
We thank our friends and teachers too,
For memories fond and new.
Thy flame of light, thy torch of truth,
May ever guide the steps of youth.
Dear Douglass High, may we ever be true,
And pledge our hearts anew.
Tis here we've learned to raise our standards high, thanks be to you dear school.

1968

Shown are some members of the Honor Society and Scholarship Club groups.

Emphasizing the excellence of the Douglass High School is the Douglass Chapter of the National Honor Society. This scene is reminding us of the induction ceremonies held in November. In the background is Miss Florence Shipman of the 1964 graduating class.

The celebration of Douglass week began with the wreath-laying ceremony. At no other time was the student body more aware of the pride, dignity, and excellence of the Douglass High School tradition.

A Competent Staff
A Comprehensive Program
A Creative Student Body*

Expo '67, held in November, showed the public the highlights of Douglass High School. Each guest was presented with a pamphlet, "Douglass High School" outlining the activities of our school.

The administrators serve as a symbol of authority and guidance. We shall never forget them.

We wish to give recognition to Susan Lightson of the graduating class of '67. Her greatest contribution was her service in the school band.

Some members of the modern dance group pose for pictures after having entertained the 9th grade class of Lemmel Junior High.

Memorabilia

Shown here are some of the guests attending Expo '67.

With fond thoughts we remember the many fire drills throughout the year.

From the Yearbook Staff

Layout, pictures, patron ads, copy and people — these are the things with which the 1968 SURVEY Staff is well acquainted.

This year, the members of the yearbook staff have tried to preserve for you in picture and word all those happy times and cherished moments you wish never to forget. We sincerely hope that the 1968 SURVEY will be a treasured memoir of your beloved alma mater.

We would like to express our sincere appreciation to those who responded to our seemingly endless requests for assistance. We wish to especially thank

Mrs. Gwendolyn Brooks, Miss Marie Brown, Mrs. Cyrus W. Marshall, Sr., Mr. Lewis Sheperd, Mr. Wallace Baden, and the Afro-American for specific contributions. Special appreciation is also due to the chairmen and heads of departments for complying with our many requests.

Working on the yearbook staff has been a challenge as well as an unforgettable and worthwhile opportunity. It is now with pride and dignity that the staff presents the 1968 SURVEY to become as part of Douglass High School's rich heritage.
